Foreword

HIS book is dedicated to the officers and men of the School for Medical Department Enlisted Technicians, Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver, Colorado. It is a monument to the tireless efforts of the instructors, and the enthusiasm of the student body in their work of gaining knowledge to promote the health of the Army and to take care of those in need on our far flung battle fields.

We salute you Soldiers in White!

Main Building, Fitzsimons General Hospital

LIEUTENANT WILLIAM THOMAS FITZSIMONS, M. O. R. C., in whose honor Fitzsimons General Hospital was named by War Department Order of July 1, 1920, was born in Burlington, Kansas, April 18, 1889. He entered the School of Medicine at the University of Kansas (Rosedale, Kansas), and received his A.B. in 1910, and his M.D. in 1912. During his senior year as a student he served as an interne at the German Hospital of Kansas City, and after graduation served one year as House Physician at St. Mary's Hospital, Kansas City. He also specialized in surgery for fourteen months at Roosevelt Hospital, New York City.

On September 13, 1914, Lieutenant Fitzsimons sailed as a volunteer with the first relief corps on the ship Red Cross. He first served with the American Woman's War Hospital and Paignton, England, for six months and was later transferred to La Paume, Belgium, returning to the United States on December 15, 1915. Upon the declaration of war by the United States, he was called to active service and was one of the first five medical officers sent across, leaving Kansas City June 14, 1917.

On September 4, 1918, while at duty at Base Hospital No. 5, Dornes Comiers, France, Lieutenant Fitzsimons accompanied by one Captain Wallace J. Jaka, Q. M. C., U. S. A., walked to a Canadian Machine Gunners Club located about three-quarters of a mile from the hospital to pay a social visit. The two American officers returned to their post about 10 p. m. The weather being exceptionally fine and the night a moonlight one, the officers remarked that it was an ideal Boche evening. The two officers, after chatting for some time in Captain Jaka's tent, separated, and Lieutenant Fitzsimons had barely reached his tent when a number of aerial bombs fell upon the hospital, one of which completely wrecked Lieutenant Fitzsimons' tent, killing him instantly and burying his body in the debris. Lieutenant Fitzsimons was buried at Etapes, France.

A case of relics, containing the Medical belt worn by him at the time of his death, fragments of the bomb which were extracted from his body, and an order authorizing the last travel performed by him, are to be seen at this Hospital. As he was the first officer of the Armies of the United States to be killed in the World War, the largest Army Hospital was named in his honor.
